In the tender coming-of-age tale "Wildhood," Link (Phillip Lewitski) is a young man of Mi'kmaq heritage who journeys across rural areas in search of the mother he hardly knew. The movie was written and directed by the Nova Scotian filmmaker Bretten Hannam, who is Two-Spirit and nonbinary, and their camera intimately observes Link as he slowly casts off the protective shield he once needed to survive. JOIN US FOR THE MOVIE, SNACKS, AND DISCUSSION!!
